build 2014-04-28

The ePADD project is managed by the Special Collections Department at the Stanford University Libraries and is partly funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC). The ePADD software is powered by the MUSE program developed in the Mobisocial Lab at the Stanford University Computer Science Department. The software is open source and licensed under the Apache Public License, v2.0.

Check the latest news about the project at <http://library.stanford.edu/spc/more-about-us/projects-and-initiatives/epadd-project>

Appraisal

The appraisal module allows individuals -- donors, curators, archivists, or others -- to review an email archive to determine relevance, importance, possible restrictions and access issues. Users download the software to their computer to run this module.

Processing

The processing module allows archivists to manage (remove or organize) email messages, to annotate, to identify and flag sensitive information (using lexicon-based analysis), and to further refine the entity extraction. This module is designed to run on the archivist's computer.

Delivery

The Delivery module provides sophisticated search functions to allow users to read the full content of emails in a collection. This module is designed to run in a computer in the reading room without access to the Internet.

Administration

The administration functions allow archivists to associate incoming email archives to accessions and collections. These functions are designed to run on the archivist's computer.

The ePADD software is open source and licensed under the Apache Public License. The contents of this site contain contain copyrighted materials. Please contact xxxxx for use of the materials.

Appraisal Module

The appraisal module allows individuals -- donors, curators, archivists, or others -- to review an email archive to determine relevance, importance, possible restrictions and access issues. Users download the software to their computer to run this module.

- Step 1 Specify email accounts to work with.
- Step 2A (Optional) Confirm correspondents inferred by ePADD. ePADD automatically merges different email addresses for a single person by applying intelligent entity resolution.
- Step 2B (Optional) Browse messages by default lexicon (pre-defined keywords), correspondent, named entities (personal, organization, location) or image attachments. You can label messages you do not want to transfer.
- Step 2C (Optional) Search messages by your own keywords and label the ones you do not want to transfer.
- Step 3 Export email archive to folder for transfer to repository.

The ePADD software is open source and licensed under the Apache Public License. The contents of this site contain contain copyrighted materials. Please contact xxxx for use of the materials.

Specify Email Sources

The Appraisal Module is designed to help the donor select email to be transferred to repositories. The current version collects email using IMAP protocol or Mbox format, generates summary information and provides tools to help select or deselect email for transfer. For email using other protocols or formats, please seek help from the repository to migrate the email to Mbox format. Please contact Peter Chan, pchan3@stanford.edu with questions.

Subject: Hey Dad

Thinking of dear Joel Oppenheimer tonight, like Buck Rogers in the 21st Century, as I checked the Major League standings on-line. Boston and New York tied for first on June 1st? Barry Bonds passing Ted Williams and Willie McCovey on the all-time career home runs list with a two-HR night at home in San Francisco? Must be the summer of 2001...

Talking Leaves goes well - Matt Chambers is really a light of the earth. Genuine and good - very smaht! John and Lucy are likewise just good people - lovely to talk for long hours in a bookstore. And be paid!

I miss you, Dad. I know Maine must be beautiful - and the pictures you took certainly were 21st century proof - but I also know the emotional location must be breathtaking, just goddamn difficult.

Dad - I am scared. Things seem precarious, uncanny.

So send more pictures...

Love, Will

Murray, Roger, Peter Simpson and a colleague in Asian Studies/Comp Lit called Hilary Chung -- young, bright, energetic, whew, guess we were like that once). this is my latest move to get funding for nzepe by pushing the research side of the site. the Mardsen Fund is the body we got money for the Hyde research a few years back, so maybe we will get lucky with this one too. would you be able to act as referee again, if we get through to Full Proposal stage? don't find out about that until April. if you're sick of writing letters of support though, we will entirely understand. Murray and Joanna returned last weekend; Murray has been in Poland (Warsaw) since September, and they came back via UK, Boston (Jacob is at Harvard on a Fulbright) and Berkeley. he's written heaps while on leave, poems and critical work, and has a new book of poems coming out from AUP midyear -- Fool Moon.
time to crash. it was a wee-hours effort last night getting the application
