What We Do

At a time of accelerating change, AMIA provides a unique forum for everyone involved in the production, use, preservation and management of visual media. From large media companies to community archives, AMIA is the only place where everyone comes together to share information, strategies, and innovations in meeting the challenges of a constantly evolving field.

AMIA members represent a broad range of organizations – film studios, national archives, historical societies, new media companies, labs, post production, universities, networks, community archives, footage libraries and more. With over 1,000 members from institutions around the world, AMIA provides an international forum for forward looking discussion among all those concerned with the preservation, exhibition and use of moving image media.

In addition to our flagship events each year, AMIA has a number of programs that include fiscal sponsorship of project initiatives, travel grants for professionals from emerging nations, student chapters to offer mentorship to the next generation of professionals, and a web portal offering a global directory of moving image resources. In addition ...

Online Learning. Our online learning provides information on emerging issues and training to keep up with the changing technical landscape.

Publications. AMIA's journal, The Moving Image, is a highly respected journal used as part of graduate level studies in training the next generation of archivists.

Resources. From the Global Supplier Directory to Disaster Recovery resources, we provide important information as well as peer to peer skill sharing through our website, webinars, and workshops.

Field-Wide Initiatives. National surveys in collaboration with the National Film Preservation Board, a new Diversity and Inclusion Fellowship program, and the Community Archiving Workshop, are a few of the programs offered to serve the needs of the full community.

International Initiatives. AMIA works globally in the preservation of and access to our media heritage as an UNESCO NGO, a partner in the Coordinating Council of Audiovisual Archives Associations, and in the international Archives at Risk program.

Why you should become an AMIA Partner

AMIA is uniquely positioned within the community. Our members include a unique mix of studio, broadcast, museums, archives, libraries, performing arts and universities – all specifically working with time-based media.

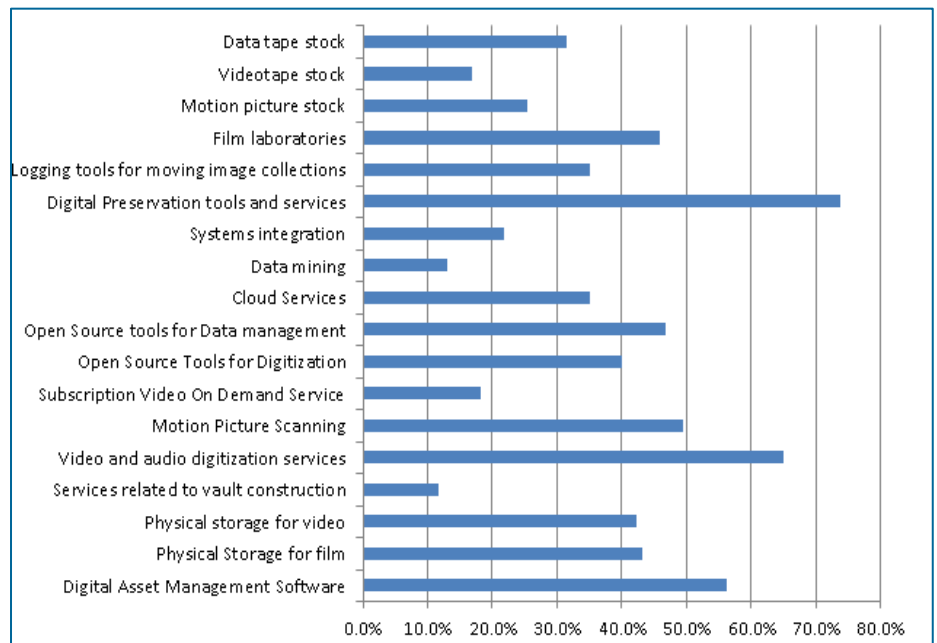

Being an AMIA partner and sponsor provides opportunities for you to reach all levels of your target audience. With our range of events you have the opportunity to promote yourself as a key player and position your message.

- Create, maintain, and enhance awareness of your products and services to the largest group of media archivists in the world
- Become a trusted partner by fostering relationships within the community
- Be part of the conversation about the future of the field
- Support the work of archivists in making diverse collections accessible to this and future generations

We are committed to keeping our organization as inclusive as possible in the belief that only a true open forum results in authentic best practices. Sponsorship of AMIA allows us to keep our costs low so that we can continue to include a diversity of media collections and support the work done by our members.

We offer a wide variety of sponsorship packages. These range from Preservation sponsorship that supports AMIA programs throughout the year to event-based packages and vendor exhibits. Our approach also allows for tailor made packages designed to meet your precise needs and budget.
